

olympic game highlights

in 1908 the us delegation noticed that there was no us flag among the national flags decorating the stadium in london for the opening cermnies Us flag bearer and iscus champion martin sheridan refused to dip the stars and stripes when he passed king edward VII's box in the parade of athletes This flag dips to no earthly king sheridan said And it hasnt since Meanwhile the finns whose country was ruled at the tame by russia were told they would have to use a russioan flag Furious they marched with no flag at all

in 1912 jim thorpe a sauk and fox native american became the only man to win both the decathlon and pentathlon in won year Afterwards swedens king gustav V told him at the medal ceremony: you sir are the greatest athlete in the world Thorpe is said to have replied thanks king A year later however the ioc canceled his record and took back his metals when they learned that he had played professional baseball for $25 a week in 1909 and 1910 the ioc had the full support of the amerعن olympic committee His medals and records were restored posthumously in 1982--29 years after he had one them 1st paragraph has 47 punctuation and spelling errors, 2nd has 43 errors.

VANCOUVER 2010 OLYMPICS GRAMMAR WORKSHEET #2
(CORRECTIONS SHOWN IN RED)

Olympic Game Highlights

In 1908, the U.S. delegation noticed that there was no U.S. flag among the national flags decorating the stadium in London for the opening Ceremonies. U.S. flag bearer and discus champion Martin Sheridan refused to dip the Stars and Stripes when he passed King Edward VII's box in the parade of athletes. "This flag dips to no earthly king," Sheridan said. And it hasn't since. Meanwhile, the Finn's, whose country was ruled at the time by Russia, were told they would have to use a Russian flag. Furious, they marched with no flag at all.

In 1912, Jim Thorpe, a Sauk and Fox Native American, became the only man to win both the decathlon and pentathlon in one year. Afterwards, Sweden's King Gustav V told him at the medal ceremony: "You sir are the greatest athlete in the world." Thorpe is said to have replied, "Thanks, King." A year later, however, the IOC canceled his record and took back his medals when they learned that he had played professional baseball for $25 a week in 1909 and 1910. The IOC had the full support of the American Olympic Committee. His medals and records were restored posthumously in 1982--29 years after he had won them.

1st paragraph has 22 capitalization errors, 4 spelling, and 21 punctuation errors.

2nd paragraph has 21 capitalization errors, 4 spelling, and 18 punctuation errors.